We are informed that another proposition will be offered the Magistrates of this county to-day, at their regular meeting as a Court of Claims, for their submission to the voters of the county looking in the direction of offering aid to the Kentucky Midland R. R. to build through our county.

We call your attention to a new enterprise in the city. Messrs. George are here to renovate mattresses, feathers, etc., and upholster and repair furniture in a working-like manner. They guarantee all work entrusted to them. They are located at John Samuels' old stand, corner Main and Broadways.

The Ninth Street Tobacco Warehouse, of Louisville, was last Wednesday incorporated as a stock company, under the title of the Meguire, Harris Co. Mr. P. Meguire was made President, H. D. Giles Vice President, J. G. Harris, Sec'y, and Treas. R. A. Campbell and Tandy Quisenberry are among the directors. Mr. Quisenberry has lately been Inspector for the market, but on account of ill health and much to the regret of buyers and sellers alike, he was forced to resign his position. He now goes into this house and will take with him a very strong following.

W. R. Nunnelley has leased the store room of Tyler & Apperson in their stone front block, has had everything newly painted and papered, and is putting in a choice stock of groceries, fruits, vegetables, etc. If you want nice fruit for anything, give him an order and it will be nice. He has also gone into a contract for a number of months to have sent to him the selected portions of beef, by which he has no refuse meat to work off on his friends. He keeps other meats in the way of lamb, (not mutton), short, old ham, half dried beef, etc. He has a perfect poultry equipment, and if you want to buy or sell chickens, ducks or geese, call on him. He says he wants to buy some choice fruit, so if you have some on your farm, take it to him.

New styles, new cloths and a fit guaranteed by Hurley & Leach, the Broadway tailors. 7-2t

TAKEN UP AS STRAY.

Two red steers, 4 to 6 years old; will weigh about 1250 lbs. each, and have marks of being worked, which the owner can have by proving property and paying charges.

HENDERSON PHIPS,

Bean Bros' speedy mare, Polly, got a record of 2:21 1/2 at Cynthia, last week. Tracy got a mark of 2:29 1/2. Knighthood, who is speedier than Tracy, would have been close to 2:20, but for a slight strain he got rolling in his stall. He will be all right in a few days and all three of them are expected to get still lower marks at the Kentucky Association trials on the 25th inst.

Dunn's week trade review again bears a very encouraging tone. Improvement is reported in nearly every article of business, and the prospects for the coming season are unusually bright. The crops of the West are all that could be desired, and wheat is moving rapidly at good prices. There is a great deal of money pouring into the South for cotton. Readheads are at ease prices, and export shipments very heavy. The money market is reported generally easier.

Chesline, the three-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Cornwell, died on Friday. The little one, used for its mother, had been a very frail dower from its birth, and the tenderest care was needed to keep the spunk of life in the little frame, even so long as it was left to them. God gives us these little ones, and and loves them with us just long enough for them to twine their tiny fingers among our heart-strings, and then takes them from us, when the parting seems the very ecstasy of agony. We may not why this is, but we do know, "Of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

On Saturday morning the wife of Mr. Lee Burns, near Morefield, awoke about three o'clock and found her husband had risen. Hearing a noise outside the house she hurried out and found him in a dying condition, presumably from a pistol shot by his own hands, as his pistol lay beside him. No cause can be assigned for the act since his domestic relations were pleasant, and his financial affairs apparently in good shape. Mr. Burns was a well-to-do and highly respected farmer, and a wide circle of friends are filled with sorrow at the rash deed. A bereaved wife, father and mother have the sympathy of the entire community.

HURLEY & LEACH,
7-2t THE BROADWAY TAILORS.

George Bros., who have come to our city prepared to do all kinds of upholstering, renovating, feathers, repairing mattresses, etc., are highly recommended as men who thoroughly understand their business, and are capable and honest. Call on them if you want honest work done by honest men.

The gentleman, young or old, who desires a stylish suit, can nowhere be better accommodated as by Harry Campbell, the well-known merchant tailor. Mr. Campbell makes a study of his customers' tastes and is very careful to cater to them. Therefore, he is always full of orders from those who know what a tasteful fitting suit is. 7-2t

John L. Coleman, who for several years past has been connected with the N. X. & M. V. road, at this point, has resigned his position, to accept the agency of the Kentucky Midland, at Frankfort. John is a first-class railroad man, and enjoys the confidence and respect of all who know him. We hope he will become a veritable railroad magnate some day.

To the Ladies.

We have a button machine, with which we can make any size button a lady wants and cover it with material to match the dress. There is no more substantial or neater button made than we can turn out, and at a cost not greater than they can be had from the jobber.

Respectfully,
7-2t THE BROADWAY TAILORS.

Few persons have any idea of the queer names of some of the out-of-the-way post-offices in the State. One of our inquisitive reporters is looking over Mr. Wanamaker's Blue Book the other day, noted down the following:

Eighty-Eight, Seventy Six, Goforth, Sugars, Home, Utility, Wide-awake, Headquarters, Nonesuch, Skylight, Baa, Pink, Holy Cross, Goodnight, Zero, Phil, Small, Quail, Alone, Tolu, Nancy and Alex.

One route tries to take all the boys and girls in the family. It goes from Coal Run by Joe, John, Guhara, Thomas, Pleasant and Andy to Inez. Another is from Dwyer to Troublesome. There are also Gunpowder, Wildcat, Honesty, Best Hide, Cutshaw, Ned, Fad, Jamboree, Sword, Nephew, Quid, Relief, Praise, Paw Paw, Whynot, Partridge, Sarassas, Viper, Jesse, Arthur, Doorway, Gray Hawk, Odys, Add, Vox, Lot, Tip Top, Pig and Dot.

School Notes.

Our efficient County Superintendent, Mr. John E. Groves, has commenced his round of visits to the schools again, and his reports will be coming in week by week.

Mr. Groves has endeavored to do his whole duty. He has evinced a highly interesting work, and devoted much more time to it than the small salary would seem to justify, to one less in love with it than he has shown himself to be. He has not only endeavored to raise the standard of the teaching force of the county, but has worked very earnestly to get the trustees to furnish better houses and more comfortable seats for the pupils. For this interst he certainly deserves the commendation of all friends of education.

Misses Clay Whidbrough and Lillie Wilburn are teaching the public schools on Spruce in a very satisfactory manner. This is their first essay in this line.

Miss Salie Berkley is progressing nicely with her school at Howells' Mill. The attendance is small, but uniform, and the work is thorough.

The school children are always glad to see Mr. Groves coming. He invariably has something pleasant in store for them.

Young Man, Go West!

The President has issued his proclamation throwing open to settlement about 2,000,000 acres of land, recently purchased by the Government from the Iowas, Kickapoos, Potowatamies, and the Sac and Fox tribes of Indians, in Indiana Territory, which is bounded on the north by the Creek nation and on the south by the Canadian river, on the east by the Arkansas river, and on the west by the Colorado river.

The western boundary being within eight miles of Guthrie, the capital and commercial metropolis of the territory, with a population of about 10,000.

These lands are well watered, having the north fork of the Canadian River running through the center with many tributaries of the Canadian and Arkansas rivers, upon which are fine bodies of the different varieties of timber, and in point of fertility, unsurpassed by any land in the United States. There are now not less than ten thousand people on the border, awaiting the hour, 12 o'clock to-day, so that they can go in and take possession of 160 acres of this valuable land.

Persons going into this territory before 12 o'clock to-day are called "sooners," and will not be entitled to the benefit of the provisions of the act giving to actual settlers a homestead.

Judge Cole, of Maysville, candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals, was in the city several days the past week extending his acquaintance among our people.

Jas. Berry, of Morefield, was in the city yesterday attending court and gave the Advocate a call. He reports good cattle selling at 4 cents and new corn $2.25 per barrel delivered.

Dr. R. P. Gurrant is in the city settling up some of his unfinished business. He proposed at an early date to go to New York and take a post graduate course in surgery. His many friends would be glad to have him come back and make his home with us and shall have completed the course.

Saturday's Cincinnati Enquirer, speaking of the young ladies who accompanied the Kentucky Cadets to "The Last Days of Pompeii," Friday night, says of one of our loveliest young ladies: "Among the number was Miss Laura Lindsay, of Mt. "IRISH CORPORA'L"

THE ADVOCATE.

HARRIS & MASON, Proprietors.

STERLING, TUESDAY, SEPT 22, 1891

FOR PRESIDENT.
GROVER CLEVELAND,
Of New York.FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.
JOHN G. CARLISLE,
Of Kentucky.

We hear a wide-spread complaint especially among our farmer friends, that their boys go off to the West to seek their fortunes instead of settling at home. Has it ever occurred to these same complainers that the great bustling West is filled with railroads that have opened up a thousand and one avenues for business, whilst our State is filled with a class of men who oppose all progress in this direction, and thus deliberately cut off the young man the many opportunities that the great West delights in holding out to him. Is it to be wondered at that the boys are going West?

Several gentlemen were discussing the refusal of the Magistrates to submit the proposition to vote aid to the Midland R. R., when one took advantage to say: "The one reason I am against the new Constitution is that it will not let me help to vote a tax on me d—m stingy fellows, who by their miserly instincts have managed to scrape together some money, and who therefore think it their duty to stand in the way of all progress." Another said: "The one reason above all others that I am for it, is that it cuts down the number of Justices of the Peace, and I hope to live to see the day when those that it does leave us will be only a memory of what has been." They both only want the road.

The board of Magistrates met on Wednesday, at o'clock, p. m., to consider a proposition from the Kentuckian Midland Railroad Company, to extend their road from North Middleton or Sharpsburg, to this place, if the county would vote them a subscription to aid them in so doing. Mr. V. L. Clark, on behalf of the R. R. Company, presented substantially the following proposition:

"For a subscription on the part of the county of $75,000 in 30 year bonds bearing five per cent., the company proposes to build within three years from Jan. 1, 1892, a standard gauge road from some point within a mile of North Middleton or Sharpsburg, and run cars on it to this city; and for a subscription of $50,000 to extend said road within the same time to a junction with the K. U. railroad at or east of Indian Fields; the bonds to be issued for each section when completed and in operation. Bonds to be paid at par, with accrued interest, at the option of the county, any time after ten years from their issuance, and the road not to be mortgaged before its completion. Mr. Clark further agreed that his company would enter into a contract allowing the county to transfer its subscription to any other company provided the K. M. Co. failed to comply with its contract within a reasonable time."

Speeches were made for and against the proposition, and upon a vote being taken the result stood as follows:

FOR SUBMISSION.

Eqs. J. T. Highland, H. L. Jones,
R. B. Crooks.

AGAINST SUBMISSION.

Eqs. W. Morris, W. H. Prewitt,
T. W. Barrow, I. N. Norton, E. E.
Keith, J. F. Richardson, J. T. Chase,
W. A. Durham, Jno. A. Thompson.

We believe the gentlemen who voted against the submission of the proposition were honest in their conviction that they were acting for the best interest of the county. But we also believe they exhibited very poor judgment. We think too, their duty ends when they shall have seen that a proposition such as was presented, was properly guarded, so that the people's interest would not be jeopardized. After they had done that, as we understand it, their duty is ended, and the people should be allowed to say whether or not they want to burden themselves with a tax. Still the majority of the magistrates, who are all honest men, thought otherwise, and though we may be sorely disappointed in their inability to see this matter as we do, we are not disposed for one moment to question either their honesty of purpose or the careful consideration of the best interest of their constituents.

HORSE AND TRACK.

Good grooming brings comfort to horse and profit to owner.

Charleston, 2:15, is now the fastest of the get of Bourbon Wilkes.

There were seventy-five trotting meetings in the United States last week.

When Alerton trotted in 2:10 he carried five ounces forward and three ounces behind.

Alerton is still king, after having the same work as Nelson, 2:10, for a week. He lowered the stallion record last Saturday to 2:09.

Pat Downing's 2:13, at Independence, an the 4th inst., is not only the fastest mile by a new trotter, but is the fastest record ever made by a stallion the season he first entered the 2:30 list.

Kentucky still keeps somewhere near the front. Nancy Hanks and Monbars have been doing some phenomenal work away from home, besides several that have won great fame in the Kentucky Circuit. —[Kansas City Live Stock Indicator.]

Under the new rules, Electioneer now has seventy-eight standard trotters and one pacer to his credit. George Wilkes has sixty-five trotters and seven pacers; Blue Bull seventy-five trotters and six pacers; Happy Medium fifty-nine trotters and three pacers.

Pearlites by Cuyler, is represented on the turf this year by two faster trotters in the first and second generation than any other mare. She is the dam of Prodigal, 2:17, and her son Patronage is the sire of Alix, three-year-old recipient 2:16. She is also the dam of Patron, that made a record of 2:14 a few years ago.

"Judges, I can't hold this horse," said a driver in a 2:30 class at Dubuque, Iowa, a few days ago when the jockey was asked to task by the occupants. The judges stand for persisting in leading the pole horse.

"Twenty-four dollars will put strength in your arms, perhaps," replied the judge, and thereafter there was no more jockeying in scoring for that of 2:14 a few years ago.

"Guilty," says the jury
In the Case of Geo. F. Green, and Confinement for Life, is the Sentence.

The trial of Geo. F. Green for murder, mentioned last week, continued with unabated interest throughout, the court-room being crowded at every session. On Wednesday the court and jury visited the scene of the murder, but the woods at the point where Davidson was shot had been cleared away, so that nothing of importance was gained by the visit. The Court convened Thursday morning, when the opening speech for the defense was made by Hon. J. J. Nesbitt, who made an earnest and eloquent plea for his client. Following Mr. Nesbitt came C. W. Nesbitt, from the Commonwealth. This was an able and ingenious presentation of the testimony adduced in this trial, and reflects great credit upon the legal knowledge of the County Attorney.

Just before the hour of noon Mr. Nesbitt concluded his speech and T. Young of Mt. Sterling began his speech for the defense, but, before he had finished, Court adjourned for dinner. In the afternoon, Mr. Young resumed and made an able and interesting plea for the defendant. Next in order came Allie Young, the brilliant young attorney of Morehead, representing the State. He spoke over two hours, and, as the people here remembered his former able speech in this case two years ago, every inch of space was occupied in the court-room long before court opened. The ladies of the town and community turned out en masse to hear an eloquent attorney. The close attention they gave him in the heated and crowded room was the best evidence that they were not disappointed. It is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Young delivered one of the finest speeches ever heard in the court-house. It was a careful review of all the evidence in the case. It was a fine combination of logic, eloquence and legal knowledge, devoid of oratory or vituperation, and was a most able presentation of the testimony as viewed by the counsel for the Commonwealth. Mr. Young is yet a young man, and certainly has a bright future before him. Col. H. L. Stone, of Louisville, followed Mr. Young in a speech of three hours. His speech was an able and exhausting presentation of his client's claims. Friday evening M. M. Redwine made the closing speech representing the Commonwealth. Mr. Redwine entered upon the discussion calmly and dispassionately, and in a most able manner he represented the interests of the Commonwealth. He is an able prosecutor, and this speech was up to the usual standard of excellence. Taken all together, counsel on both sides acquitted themselves admirably. The case was submitted to the jury.

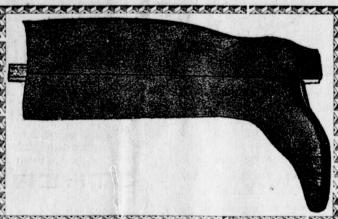

The following report from this county were all Cynthia trials last week: Dr. Ant had his fine young mare Laden, that he sent for a record. Skinned a mark of 2:36. The tracklow, being very soft. This mare George Stock, and will take a lot of 2:30 on a good track. Boys had bad head, Poly, Knob and Tracy. Poly started in ball Tuesday, and was beaten by York Central, 2:18; in a very close race, in 2:21; 2:20. Poly started on Friday, and obtained a lot of 2:21. She is likely to trot 2:20 before she is three. Tracy started on Friday and made a lot of 2:26. Tracy is fast and strong, and record on a good track. Goodrich got down in his stables Wednesday night and strained his legs so

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The Louisville Conference of the Methodist Church South was in session at Cadiz, Trigg county, last week.

The Bank of Lyons, supposed to be one of the strongest in Kansas, made an assignment Wednesday. It is believed the assets will equal the liabilities.

It is said the Peasants of South Russia, frenzied by starvation, are murdering each other for little or no gain, and the situation is one of extreme desperation.

It is rumored negotiations are pending by which the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe would be consolidated. The deal will add many hundreds of miles to the Santa Fe, which is already the longest system of railroads in the world.

The Democratic party has called a meeting to give up their charter. The members declare they want to get out of the atmosphere of misguided and disappointed politicians who are using the Alliance to disrupt the Democratic party.—[Courier-Journal.]

The Massachusetts Republican State Convention met at Boston Wednesday, and nominated the following ticket: Governor, ex-Congressman Charles H. Allen; Lieutenant Governor, W. H. Hale; Secretary of State, W. M. Olin; Treasurer, George A. Marsden; Attorney General, Albert E. Marsden; Auditor, John W. Kimball.

The anti-sub-Treasury and anti-Third party Alliance convention at St. Louis Wednesday endorsed the Ft. Worth platform, and condemned Macune. The convention decided to appoint a committee to meet and submit to the General Council of the Alliances at Indianapolis in November the objections of the convention to the Osage platform, with a view to patching up differences.

Reports from the flooded district of Spain make the situation worse by far than the information heretofore received has indicated. In and around Condegra alone the damage is estimated at $25,000,000, while the loss of life is awful. Whole families were drowned in their homes, and in one house twenty-seven corpses were found. It is said that more than two thousand lives were lost in the flood.

The Nebraska Democratic State Convention, at Grand Island, Thursday, was harmonious and enthusiastic despite the predicted split over Gov. Boyd's veto of the railroad tariff bill, before a partisan court ousted him from the chair to which the people had elected him. Boyd was indorsed and a platform demanding a tariff for revenue only and the free coinage of silver was adopted. Judge Brody was nominated for the Supreme Court and F. A. Brogan for Regent of the State University.

The New York State Democratic Convention nominated Roswell P. Flower, for Governor, over Alfred C. Chapin, by a vote of 334 to 43. The following nominations were also made: For Lieutenant Governor, William F. Sheehan; Secretary of State, Frank Rice; Controller, Frank Campbell; Treasurer, Elliott E. Danforth; Attorney General, Simon Rosendal; Surveyor and Engineer, Martin Schenck. Immediately after his nomination Mr. Flower sent Governor Hill the following letter:

"Sir—I hereby tender my resignation as a member of the Fifty-second Congress from the Twelfth District of the State of New York, take effect to-day. Very respectfully,

ROSWELL P. FLOWER.

The Late Financial Epidemic.

As an illustration of the close commercial relation and interdependence of nations, nothing could be more instructive than the late depression and stagnation of trade. It is wonderful how sensitive the world is to the touch of any disturbing element in finance—more sensitive than to the call for sympathy or patriotism or religion. A shock comes in a distant trading post, upsetting the relations of trade, and immediately there is a tremor in London, on the Bourse, and through Wall street. Commerce is like water in its mobility, and tendency to seek a level.

Ever since last October markets have been in a cramped and uneasy condition; to-day they are settling and gathering impetus for free, perhaps feverish movement. It was about October that the alarm came through London from as far off a country as the Argentine Republic. Trouble of a serious character was brewing. This situation had suddenly taken the notion that it was grown up, as an old time fog would say, and wanted store clothes. It was pluming for "modern improvements." It hadn't the money to pay for them, saw no chance to get it in its own territory, and resorted to foreign lenders. As usual, the English were ready with plenty of money, and all they wanted was securities. The Argentines blandly wrote up the paper and gave it for hard cash from the Britons. Then they began building railways, harbors, school-houses, public buildings, markets, bridges, theatres, hospitals, paving streets, and setting up new banks. This started in 1881. The Republic had not borrowed extensively before that time. But beginning with the year 1886, and ending with 1889, it had negotiated a loan through the Barings of London, et cetera, among other firms. But this was not all. The separate provinces of the Argentine State had borrowed $100,000,000, municipalities $90,000,000, and the Government itself had had loans on railways; the whole amount of direct loans to the country and its political divisions amounting to $500,000,000. Add to this a great load of "securities"—worthless paper issued by the State, to the amount of $600,000,000; then put in $500,000,000 of mortgages secured, or rather guaranteed, by the Government, and we reach the tremendous total of $1,600,000,000 of debt. Well, other countries have had debts. France after the Prussian war owed five billion francs, which was paid with ease; at the end of our own Civil war we owed three billion dollars, which has been rapidly paid up, besides continuing the pay-roll of soldiers under the name of pensions. But the poor Argentines had this huge debt on a population of only millions of people, only a small number of whom had an income. Of course the deluge had to come soon. Interest was due, and enough was due each year to make a large enough public debt. This interest could be paid in only one way. This was to borrow more money; that is, to borrow the trick of the small boy who must be "astaked" to pay the one to whom he is all his marbles in debt. England saw the situation through a flash of revolution in Buenos Ayres, which revealed the complete emptiness of the treasury. Naturally, Argentine securities could not be allowed to drop fast, and the way to prevent this was to sell other securities held in England. American paper began to go, and Wall street began to get panicky. When Wall street trembles the whole country must shake, and shake it did. A rumor came that the great house of Baring Bros., was in danger, and a fatal panic was averted only by the activity of the Bank of England in negotiating a loan of eleven million sterling for that firm, and securing it by raising the rate of discount six per cent.

The effect in this country was not to lessen the amount of money on hand, but to take it out of circulation.

There was a universal lack of confidence, each putting away all the cash he could and waiting to see what his neighbor would do. All lines were tightly drawn, and to aggravate the situation there was a large cotton crop, besides a surplus of two million bales from the year before. Cotton would not sell, except at very low prices, and not much money was put into circulation. On account of a rise of prices etc. etc. who could do sent their money to Europe to import goods before the new scale of duties went into use, thereby to get the advantage of increased prices. With all this, the wonder is that the country was so able and so energetic as to bear the burden, not that trade did not wake into new life.

But somehow trade did not revive. Confidence was renewed, and the channels of commerce were again opened. Again came a check, in a feeling of insecurity upon the question of free coinage. Men did not like to venture their money unless they knew it would retain its value. If there should be an amount of money exceeding the demand, they said, the value of money must fall like any other commodity. This, however, has abated to some extent. The President, in a recent speech, has pledged himself to veto any measure looking to the free coining of silver. There is not an absolute guarantee in a veto, of course, but it shows that a large number of the party in power, through the voice of their President, express themselves against unlimited money.

We desire to say to our citizens that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Dr. King's New Life Pills, Buckwheat Arnicia Salve and Electric Batteries, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. W. S. Lloyd, druggist.

THE ADVOCATE.

SHAVING DEAD MEN.

"Fifty cents?" said the jolly looking fat man who had occupied the barber's chair and the barber for over half an hour. "I wouldn't pay it only that I have just been left a legacy" and with good humor smile he dropped an extra quarter into the hairdresser's hand.

"I was left a legacy once," timidly suggested the barber as he lathered my face, and as I made no objection his low conversation gradually crept on into a story of this remarkable occurrence. "Yes and I was nearly cheated out of it too. But I was too early for them. It was a man I had been shaving for I don't know how many years, when one day he said, 'I want to die right after I shave off up here,' which means 'I want somebody ever knew that he was one, and I had always found the case of one wife."

"He had tons of them, wife one very short the first week; then one a little longer for a week, and so on to the fourth. When he got to the last I used to say, 'Well, you're off now.' He would say, 'Yes, but I haven't the time today,' he would say, and would tip me half a dollar. The next day he would put on his short wig and I trimmed his hair up to it. That's how it was probably he had a wig, because sometimes his hair was long and at others just as if it had been cut.

"When he died I left him seated in his will, and I gave to his heirs. But his brother, who was one of his heirs, tried to cheat me out of it by not having the corpse shaved at all. I just heard of it the night before the funeral, and when the undertaker had gone away we turned the body over on the floor and I shaved him." It was a pretty difficult job, and my fingers were stiff and weak after, because the ice had melted and run on the floor. But I got my money."

"Have you shaved many dead men?" "Perhaps dozen or two. It is not the kind of job to run after. It is different too. You cannot turn the man's head around, and you have to get into all sorts of positions to make a good job of it. Then if you make a little mess with the razor there is a great gasp because of the skin being so tightly stretched. You can't shave a dead man. No, I wouldn't shave a dead man, unless it was to oblige the friends of some old customer."

An Inevitable Conflict Pending.

Today, as yesterday, as tomorrow, and as for a long time past, the situation of France and Germany, forms the great subject of anxiety, which is imposed upon the meditation of all European statesmen. At no other point is it foreseen that war can break out. Russia has great ambitions and has strong desires, but Russia is for years past inclined to make peace, for she does not realize them single handed, and it does her no harm to have to provide a general war which would become result of her combined action with France who, on the contrary, is strongly inclined to give the signal of war, for if she did she would be left behind and would be speedily crushed. It could be safely as the result of a general war that Italy could obtain her share, and in the present state of things it is considered that she would be left alone, for that general war alone could procure it for her, if she could, if she were left single handed, she would be unable to be overcome France.

Neither Austria nor England dreams of war. It is therefore still, as twenty years ago, France and Germany who could occasion war; because, whatever may be alleged, whatever may be proclaimed, or whatever may be conjectured, the two great powers will—whether for their own individual interest or for the sake of their allies—make war, and for the safety of our human family consider both nations. Dr. Blizzards in Harper's Magazine.

The following is an extract from the old method of historical writing resulted from the fact that the world was looked at from a statical point of view, or as if a picture of the world were a series of detached "snap-shots" taken right round the human race and its fortunes. These ideas were tacitly assumed to have been always very much the same as at present. One age was treated much like another, and when comparisons were made it was often a manner as different from the moderns as from the ancients. The method was different from that of alchemy, as men's studies had not yet been turned in such a direction as to enable them to appreciate the immensity of the results that are wrought by the creative power of man. The cause of this was, dispersed to attempt to match importance to the catastrophic and anomalous; and the agency of powerful individuals—which upon any sound theory must be regarded as of great importance—not only magnified but rendered it unlittable what they sought to transform human history into demigods.

It thus appears that the way in which our forefathers treated history was part and parcel of the way in which they regarded the world. Whether the history of the world was to be found in some chaotic mass of field with which they could deal only in a vague and groping manner and in small detached groups—Professor John Fiske in Popular Science Monthly.
